Senior Care in 2030: What Trends and Demographics Tell Us About the Future

Jennifer Axelson, LCSW, CCM, MSCC, CLCP

Martha Kern

The demographic swell of 76 million people known as the Baby Boom generation has caused significant shifts in the American landscape as it has moved through various life stages. The Baby Boom generation, now retiring at a rate of 10,000 people per day, is poised to change the way seniors live and receive care.

Demand for care-related services is set to explode. The problem, however, is that there may not be enough care providers - enough people – to handle it.

Consider this:

- The 80+ population is projected to increase by 79% by 2030. The caregiver demographic (ages 45-64) will increase in the same period by just 1%.
- In 2010, there were seven potential caregivers for every person in the high-risk 80+ years.
- By 2050, there will be only three potential caregivers for every senior in need of care. Continue Reading

Probate and Underwater Real Estate: The Promise of LaPlume

Fredric Bryan Lesser
Jeffrey P. O'Kelley

When an insolvent estate includes real property mortgaged for more than its value, that property can be extremely difficult to sell. But selling it is a prerequisite to closing the estate. Fortunately, a groundbreaking appellate case holds that probate courts can sell an estate's "underwater" real property free and clear of all liens, including mortgage liens. With the kind permission of both the authors and the Illinois Bar Journal, we offer this fascinating article. Continue Reading

Learning to (Moon) Walk: How a Young Man's Life was Changed by his Caregiver

Shay Jacobson, RN, MA, NMG, LNC, CNL, CP

Martha Kern
Thomas Anselmo

Bobby's mom was worried.

She was 80 years old and a widow. Bobby, her only child, was 35 and lived with her all his life.

Bobby's mom, Alice, laid awake nights wondering what would become of Bobby, a severely obese young man with Down Syndrome, when she could no longer care for him? Continue Reading
